

LBJ FACES

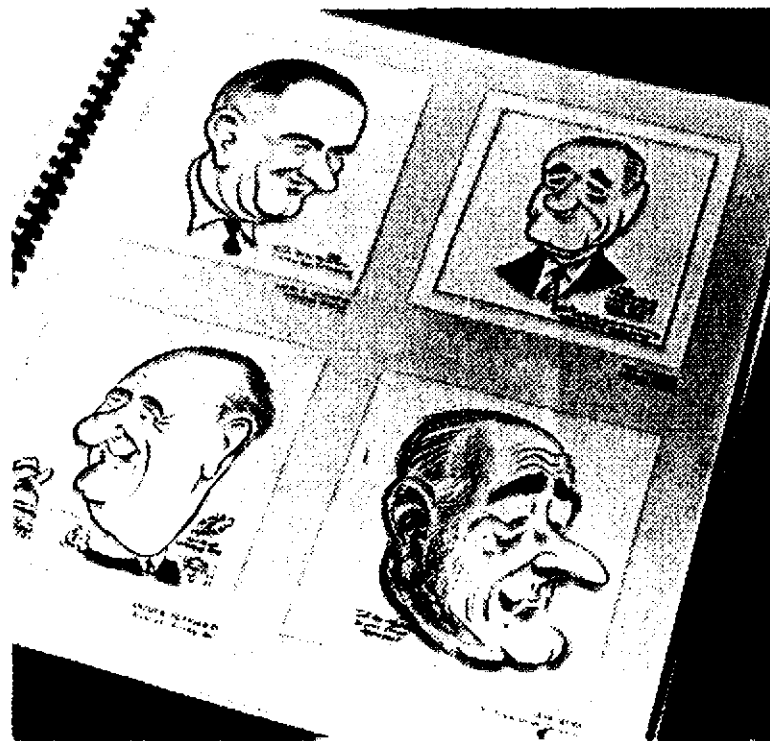

The Nation's Cartoonists!

"Oh wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselfs as others see us!"

So said Robert Burns in his immortal poem. Substituting words with pen and ink, members of the Association of American Editorial Cartoonists showed President Johnson what he looks like to them. The cartoonists, representing newspapers and news organizations throughout the U.S. and Canada, presented the President with an album of their works, some shown here. The original caricatures depicted their impressions of the familiar countenance, nearly all emphasizing the ample nose, cleft chin and the smile wrinkles around the mouth and eyes. At the time of the presentation of the album in the White House, President Johnson was also made an Honorary Member of the Association and given his membership card. He was admonished to carry this card at all times. It is suspected that some mornings when the newspapers are spread out before him he must be sorely tempted to tear that membership card into shreds.

President Johnson happily accepts the book of cartoons from AAEC members Dan Dowling of Publishers Syndicate, and John Stampone of The Army Times

Church Attendance

BUILDS CHARACTER

If A Man
Prays
Right

"My Compass"

Think for a moment what it means to the man who holds that compass... the man who can truthfully make that statement... "My Compass." He owns a blueprint, a recipe, a guide book which contains all the rules-of-the road for every man who aspires to a crown. The fellow who reads and heeds its directions is the best man in your community. He is the "Joe" whose word is his bond... who pays his taxes, loves his neighbor and supports his church with both his means and his presence.

You In The Church

The Church In You

— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Garagolia Says Hall of Fame Fun

By HARRY KING Associated Press Writer

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Joe Garagolia, the master of ceremonies for the first eight Hall of Fame banquets, says the Arkansas banquet is the "only fun one" he attends during the year.

There was plenty of fun at the ninth banquet Thursday night, sprinkled occasionally with somber notes. Houston columnist Morris Frank ran the smooth show and managed to jab at political figures as well as sports figures.

University of Arkansas Football Coach Frank Broyles, former Brooklyn Dodger pitcher Elwin (Preacher) Roe and former welterweight champion Tommy Freeman were inducted into the Hall — three champions from three eras.

Garagolia was on the program again—this time to introduce Roe. Frank introduced Garagolia after saying his role of following the former catcher as master of ceremonies "is kind of like Phyllis Diller substituting for Elizabeth Taylor on a blind date."

Garagolia took the stand and mentioned that Frank was one of the few people he knew with two first names.

"I never thought I'd see the day when Lum and Abner was done Jewish," said Garagolia. "This is another first for me. Can you imagine an Italian following a sheriff?"

Garagolia was introduced after Garland County Sheriff Bud Canada. Canada was there to introduce Freeman, his former boxing instructor.

Garagolia said Broyles was unhappy because the Razorbacks lost two ball games last year. "Why, when I was at Pittsburgh, we used to do that on Labor Day."

Frank noted that Canada remained an amateur during his boxing career. "He wanted to stay an amateur because he was going into politics and didn't want to get in the habit of taking money."

Sports Editor of the Arkansas Gazette, Orville Henry, was listed on the program to introduce Freeman.

"I found out who was going to introduce Tommy," said Canada, "and found out he was a member of the Arkansas Gazette and I said I'd do it."

Roe recalled pitching to St. Louis' Stan Musial.

"His dad was ill and I asked (catcher) Roy Campanella to find out how he was doing. I asked Campy what he had found out and he said, 'I asked him, but before he could answer he was on third.'"

Roe said prior to the banquet the members of the head table were lined up.

"They called off our names... Roe, Garagolia, and Joe said, 'I made the starting lineup... first time I ever followed a pitcher, though.'"

Frank said his feelings were hurt. "The Baptists, Methodists and Catholics all got something. I don't expect you to give me something on my first trip... but at least sell me something wholesale."

He said his ambition in life was to be "even broke like the Democratic Party." Frank said he was misled when he married. He thought he was marrying into money. "After the estate had been settled all that was left on it was bitterweed, taxes and kinkfofs."

Former Gov. Orval Faubus, who has been one of Garagolia's prime targets in the past, was presented a lifetime membership in the hall by Garagolia. Garagolia was presented lifetime membership No. 2 by former Arkansas basketball coach Glen Rose.

Funny Return To Hearth

LUCINDERELLA. By Berry Fleming. John Day. $4.50.

The comic muse runs amok in this farcical bit of fiction about eccentrics in a Southern town.

It seems that the heroine, variously known as Lucinda, Lucy and Lucinderella, a scrawny, unprepossessing youngster, had fled north to that den of iniquity, New York City, and had tapped out on her typewriter some popular novels — including one that was made into a Broadway play — about her hometown relatives and friends.

Having acquired enough brittle fame to last for a while, Lucy decides she is written out — or did she get that notion from her headshrinker? — and comes back home to seek calm.

Calm is about the last thing you would expect from the old homestead, which is a sort of free refuge set up by an ancestor and populated by an assortment of kooky eccentrics from all branches of the family.

Or has Lucy really come back to gather material for another best seller? It seems that she has the knack of making her fictional characters seem more real than the live people she models them from.

The idea of being an author's puppet really bugs the narrator of this tale. Clump Spignor, one of the inhabitants of the homestead loony bin. Good old bachelor Clump, being a bit naive, thinks he has a chance to romance this erratic witch of an author. But he is hopelessly lost poor guy.

All persons having claims against the estate must exhibit them duly verified, to the undersigned within six months from the date of the first publication of this notice, or they shall be forever barred and precluded from any benefit in the estate.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Root Canal Therapy Major Aid in Saving Baby Teeth

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Killing" nerves as a means of conserving adult teeth is probably as old as dentistry. Many techniques have been used with varying success. Even deadly poisons, such as arsenic compounds, were sealed in teeth with infected nerves in order to destroy the nerve. This method is still in use in many parts of the world.

Much success was claimed, but percentage of failures was rather high compared with present standards. Today's techniques are so refined and sophisticated, and specialists who do this work are so well-educated that, with sensible selection of cases, there are few if any failures.

But root canal therapy, as it is called, was rarely used to save baby teeth. They weren't considered important enough to save. Weren't they going to be replaced by permanent teeth soon?

Now we realize more than ever that healthy baby teeth are important in promoting a child's good health, appearance and speech; in maintaining his chewing apparatus; and in guiding permanent teeth into proper position in the jaw.

Many more parents are now listening to what dentists have been preaching to them for years: Preserve baby teeth until permanent ones under them are ready to come into place.

A major aid in saving baby teeth is removal of infected nerves by root canal therapy. Nerve canals in baby teeth are crooked, normally making it difficult, often impossible, to remove all of the nerve. Techniques routinely used now involve removal of only part of the nerve, the coronal portion. This has markedly increased dentists' ability to save teeth that were previously condemned to extraction.

Is it painful? No. Novocain injection "freezes" the tooth and removal of the nerve is quick and can be completed in one visit.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Small Bridge Profits Grow

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's had shows Eric Murray at work again. We approve of his double of one spade but sort of shudder at his two no-trump call. On the other hand, Eric's style is to bid when it is his turn and his two no-trump bid produced fine dividends.

Sammy Kehela in the East went to three hearts and if South had only passed even Sammy would have had to work to hold his loss to down two. Down two undoubted and not vulnerable would not have represented any real loss but if South had doubled three hearts, Eric's two no-trump call would have been a real loser.

As it was the bid produced a five International Match Point profit for the Canadian star.

South won the opening heart lead and returned the suit. East won and shifted to a diamond. South allowed this to run to Eric's queen and Eric led another heart. South ruffed in dummy, discarded a diamond on the ace of clubs and led a diamond for a finesse. The finesse lost to Eric's king and because the defense still had to make two trump tricks, South was down one.

At the other tables, South was allowed to play two spades and with the play going the same way, these South players made the same eight tricks for a plus of 110 points instead of a minus of 100 points.

bridge game but in IMP competition they actually determine who wins and who loses. In the IMP scale a swing of 170-210 points is worth 5 IMPs. A swing of 750 points which represents the difference between a vulnerable game and a slam is only worth 13 IMPs so that three such part-score swings more than balance a missed slam.

Crossett in 66-62 Win Over Hope

The Hope Bobcats staged a brilliant fourth quarter comeback after having trailed the Crossett Eagles as much as 15 points only to have it erased 66-62 in and overtime last night at Crossett.

Behind by the score 57-45 with only 4:25 remaining to be played the Cats came alive as they rallied for 10 consecutive points. This narrowed the gap to 57-55 with 2:35 seconds still showing on the clock.

Hope's Dwight Galloway connected on a 12 foot hookshot with only five seconds left in regulation play to send the game into the extra three-minute period with the score tied at 60-60.

The two teams matched points through the first two minutes of the additional period but in the final 48 seconds the Eagles put the game away with a field goal and a pair of free throws.

The win allowed the Eagles to retain their first place spot in the Region 4AA standings as they are still undefeated in the district with a 4-0 record.

On the other hand it sent the Bobcats record to a 3-2 which is still the third best performance in the nine team district. In the early action the Bobcats jumped off to a lead of 12-7 through the first four minutes of play in the first quarter. However by the end of the period the Eagles had pulled ahead 17-13.

In the second chapter, which was all Crossett, the Eagles flew ahead 37-24. This came on the sharpshooting of their flashy little guard, Larry Crook, who gunned for 10 points in this quarter alone on set shots.

The Cats could only chop the Crossett lead by two points through the third period but the second half was already looking somewhat better than the former. Still the Bobcats were having trouble getting rebounding position on the Eagles' big boys 6-6 Dewayne Willis and 6-4 Craig Metcalf.

The third quarter was completed with the score 51-40 in favor of Crossett.

The Cats got off on the wrong foot in the 4th period as Stan Reyenga left the game on fouls. Then with 5:02 left to go the Bobcats 6-4 standout Stan Parris was tossed out of the contest on a technical foul.

In effect the official's ruling seemed to inspire the Bobcats who were trailing by 12 at the time. They made five straight field goals to pull within two points of the Eagles.

The Bobcats' Junior forward Larry East accounted for eight of these in the comeback effort. Things looked dim still though Hope was behind 60-58 with mere 17 seconds remaining.

However, Willis was unable to sink a couple of free tosses for the Eagles, allowing Hope to get the ball back down the court in time for Galloway equalizer.

The Bobcats lost their third man early in the overtime as senior guard Mike Westbrook left with five fouls. Then the Eagles went ahead with 2:18 left on the clock, Willis again driving for a layup. However, he came down after the shot and picked up a personal foul by blowing over Luther Shaw.

Shaw sank both shots of the one-one situation to even things up 62-61.

With 48 seconds left the Eagles went ahead for good as Metcalf pushed through a foul shot.

Seven seconds later teammate Willis added another layup. In the remaining 22 seconds Metcalf returned to the charity line to add the clincher and pull the final score to 66-62.

East was high point for the game with 25 while Crook and Metcalf of Crossett had 21 each. Shaw tossed in 18, Parris 11, Galloway 4, Westbrook 3 and Griffiths 1 for Hope. In rebounding Parris was the leader with 15. East had 14, Shaw 7, and Griffiths 5.

In the Junior game Hope fell once again before a much taller Crossett Junior team 41-29.

Ronnie Brown led the Kittens in scoring with 10, Glen Black added 4, David Still 5, Thomas Norvel 2 and John Spraggins 1.

Both teams see action again tonight against the Warren Lunenburgs in Jones Field House starting at 8:30. Admission is 75 for adults and 40 cents for

Pat Smith's Outdoor Notebook

DEEP WATER CAY, G.B.I.—(NEA)—This is the incredibly lush and wild East End of Grand Bahama Island where the mangrove-choked land is laced with a hundred channels and the water is a series of jade and violet slants that stun the eyes when the sun is strong.

Armand Carey—whose name alone should entitle him to at least one best-seller—stood in the stern of the sneakboat, poling us along the shoreline while I crouched in the bow holding a spinning rod baited with live shrimp. Our eyes strained into the shallows, seeking out the fastest and wariest fish in the world.

Just two hours earlier, I had flown in from Fort Lauderdale in a private charter plane, landing on the 2,500-foot grass runway at Gil Drake's very comfortable sportfishing settlement and, as yet, I had not seen a bonefish.

Armand, however, who works full time as one of Drake's collection of guides, had seen a dozen of these silvered knights of the sea and he was slightly frustrated by my blundering myopia.

"Bonefish, suh, at 12 o'clock," Armand would shout, pointing with his long pole. "Don't ya see 'im? He right in front o' ya. . . Nevah mind . . . he long gone now."

Meanwhile, I would be pivoting frantically like a nearsighted nose gunner, weakly imploring: "Where . . . where?" And Armand would laugh diplomatically, reassuring me that there were plenty more bonefish on East End and that catching one was merely a matter of time.

Fortunately he was right. An hour later, we swung into a vast area called Big Mangrove Flats. The wind had died and the mirrorlike surface glared back at the sun.

"Now, suh," said Armand, "I will bet you a smoke that you see bonefish." I accepted the wager, wishing Armand all the luck in the world as we glided onto the big flats.

We drifted along a sandbag, passing over five- and six-foot sharks, barracuda and one great, fluttering manta ray. "We will see bonefish," murmured Armand. "De sharks are always near de bones . . . and, suh, see de spook one bonefish, all of them will be gone so fast. Like nothin' you evah seen."

Then I saw them. The black tails, winking in the hot glare, were there by the hundreds, moving slowly as the bonefish fed on the crustaceans in the two-foot deep water.

We moved into the center of a great U-shape of tails. "Now, suh, all I can tell you is pick one out and be sure to cast de shrimp in front of 'im muddy places? Dat is where de bonefish been eatin'."

Then Armand stretched his gaze far out ahead of the sneakboat. Suddenly, he stopped poling and whispered in measured words: "I win the bet, suh . . . out there . . . two, maybe three hundred yards dey is bonefish tails all around."

Armand slipped the pole silently into the water, saying: "Get down low, suh, be very careful to move slow. If you or you will spook 'im."

I cast out 30 feet. The shrimp splashed on the surface and settled to the bottom. The bonefish flashed and began sucking in the bait. "Let 'im take line. Let 'im take lots a line, suh," Armand said, as he backed the sneakboat out of the "U."

I counted to ten and struck! The bonefish became a torpedo and headed for open water—in the direction of Portugal—and, as he kicked up a 30-foot wake, every bonefish nearby shot out in different directions.

Fifteen minutes later the long, silver splinter with the forked tail and powerful dorsal fin lay on his side by the boat. Armand extracted the hook and released the catch. "About seven pounds. A good fish."

Then he put down his pole and sat on the middle seat and waited. I handed him a cigarette, lit it and said: "Armand, somehow I have the idea that I have been taken."

"Yes, suh," said Armand, displaying a wide grin.

Between you'n'me

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—At halftime in the Super Bowl coach Vince Lombardi stood before the green-shirted gladiators who represented Green Bay and reminded them they had a superseding obligation.

The Packers led, 14-10, from their exertions but didn't need to be told the Kansas City Chiefs had outgained them, 181 yards to 164, and looked menacing enough to achieve an upset.

"We," said Lombardi, "are representing the whole National Football League."

The feeling really hit home to defensive tackle Henry Jordan, a veteran of 10 years in the NFL.

"It made us queasy," said Henry, in recalling the moment "I mean guys who had played against us all these years—from teams like the Browns and the Cardinals—came up and wished us good luck before the game. It was a new experience. Lombardi had told us that before, about representing the league, but we needed a little reminder."

Henry went off singing, "We're in the money."

Phil Bengtson, defensive coach of the Packers, is in his 50th and has been coaching more than a quarter of a century. At halftime, Phil was more concerned with Green Bay representing a football team. Quarterback Lenny Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs, operating from a moving pocket, had the Packers looking like befuddled ducks. "We weren't getting a real good pass rush in the first half," said Phil. "When we got at Dawson, we grabbed instead of tackled. So it resulted in a bit of uncertainty on the part of our individuals. In the second half we improved our tackling a little bit and got to the quarterback. That, basically, is what happened."

What also happened was that when Kansas City took the second half kickoff and advanced near midfield, with a third down and five situation, Bengtson from the sidelines signaled a blitz by his linebackers. It was the first time they blitzed in the game. With linebackers Lee Roy Caffey and Dave Robinson, plus Jordan, putting extreme pressure on Dawson, he threw a wobbly pass that Willie Wood picked off and returned 50 yards to the four-yard line.

Elijah Pitts sliced over for a touchdown on the next play, and Green Bay had firm charge of the game. "The blitz," said Bengtson of his unit, "relaxed them and got them playing their own game and not worrying too much."

Max McGee, the 34-year-old split end of the Packers, had already told friends before the game that he was retiring after 13 years of competition. On the field before the game, Max was primarily concerned with representing himself. Max had not played much during the season.

But he made a brilliant one-hand grab for one touchdown, a juggling catch in the end zone for another and altogether caught seven passes.

"I can't think of a better way to go out," said Max. "I caught more passes than I caught all year. So I think it's about time to quit."

Max got in the game only because Boyd Dowler was hurt early in the first quarter. "You get a little spirit," said Max, "when you get to play. I didn't expect to play much and then bam, it happened. And that makes a new man out of you, getting on that field."

Max, therefore, represented the pride that makes up a championship athlete and a championship team.

The Kansas City Chiefs, carrying the banner of the American Football League, really had nothing to be ashamed about. They were excellent for one half and obviously have good personnel. The Packers were simply superb.

"I'd say any time we lose a game by even one point," said Chief owner Lamar Hunt, "it's damaging to a team's prestige and, in this case, the league's prestige but one game such as this is not going to make or break the AFL."

Nope, it just made the individual players on the losing team $7,500 poorer. Henry Jordan of the Packers showed what the pros really represent when he contemplated the $15,000 payoff.

"I'm going to cash it all in $1 bills," said Henry, "and put it in the bathtub."

Eventually, he might spend it.

Everyone Has Own Idea on Vietnam War

By JAMES MARLOW

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eight men in public life, giving their views on how to handle the war in Vietnam, produced a hodgepodge. But at least it gave an insight into the lonely job of President Johnson who must make the decisions.

The most indisputable fact of the war so far is that Johnson, criticized no matter what he does, can't please everyone if only because, it seems, everyone has his own ideas on what should be done.

The eight men demonstrated it over the weekend: Six Republican senators, one Democratic senator, and Michigan's Republican governor, George Romney. All, except Romney, had their say on Sunday television and radio.

Romney is apparently not one of the best-informed people on Vietnam. So far his ideas have been vague. Until this past weekend he had stayed mum on Vietnam since his election to third term in Michigan last November.

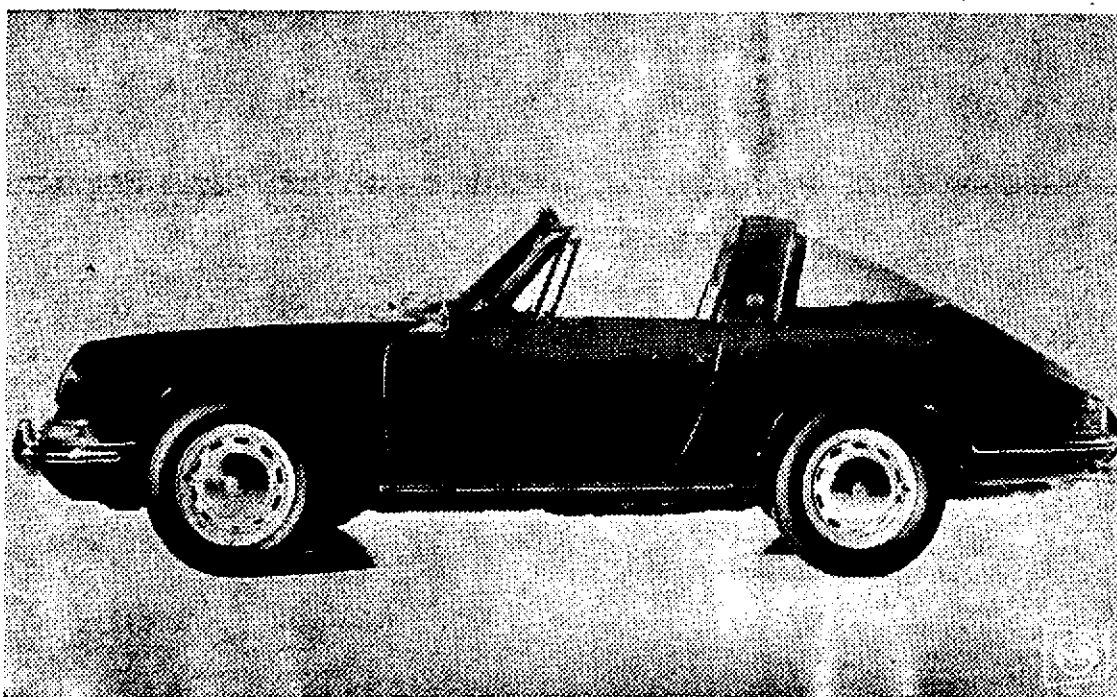

Even before that he was quiet about it. He had made hash of his ideas on this subject at a news conference last July. He was reported to be anxious to bone-up on Vietnam before saying anything about it again. This past weekend he talked to some Washington newsmen.

He said Johnson's decision to prosecute the war, while searching for a way to end it, may have prolonged it. He was said to have expressed the view in private conversations that Johnson didn't push the war hard enough.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Regardless of what Detroit thinks or hopes, that sports car fad which began about 10 years ago shows no signs of letting up.

Overall sales of foreign sports models—just about everything from Triumph Spitfires to Ferrari 500 Superfasts—are climbing steadily.

A couple of companies had off years on the American market, but their researchers are quick to note the U.S. market is only a changing one, not a dying one.

The big reason for this, the foreign makers point out, is that in this country a sports car is no longer considered a plaything for the extravagant or a status symbol for the young.

The British Motor Corp. (MGB, Austin Healy, 04 Sprite, and MG Midget Sports Cars) surveyed the American market to see just who is buying BMC and other make sports cars.

The buyer is male 85 per cent of the time. He's about 34 years old, well-educated and holds a position with an income slightly above the national average for new car buyers.

About half of America's sports car owners are married. The average owner claims to be sophisticated when it comes to literature and the arts and he says he is an active participant in sports.

Sound Of Music (?)

Perspective

Somebody has figured out that if the world's three billion people were reduced proportionately to 1000, 90 would be North Americans (60 citizens of the U.S.), 50 South Americans, 210 Europeans, 85 Africans and 565 Asians. And the Americans would account for half the total income. - Anniston (Ala.) Star

'Going Out Of Business'

One of the tireddest pieces of cheap-jack advertising is the "going out of business sale" advertised by merchants who continue to use the same signs and price tags for months and years at a time. The idea is to con the unsuspecting public into buying what it thinks if reduced-price merchandise on the premise that anyone going out of business must be reducing prices. Now the Dallas City Council has passed an ordinance which would put the cost for such sucker-bait advertising squarely where it belongs: on the merchant.

The ordinance is very simple. Any firm which intends to have a "quitting business sale" must obtain a $50 license for a 30-day period. If the business is still operating after the 30 days, it must pay the city $10 a day until it actually closes. If the law is enforced, it could just be that some of those famous going-out-of-business extravaganzas will be for real. - Greenville (Miss.) Delta Democrat-Times

LRU Not to Consider UA Merger

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Carey V. Stable, president of Little Rock University, has said in a memorandum to the LRU faculty, staff and students that he is compelled to consider LRU's "permanent status to be both private and independent." He said a lack of significant progress toward a proposed merger with the University of Arkansas brought him to this belief.

Since the merger discussions began, Stable said, LRU has been unable to build up "the necessary increased financial support" and had been unable to go ahead with its development program.

He explained that potential contributors to LRU were waiting to see what came of the merger proposal.

Stabler said that his statement was not an official decision of the LRU trustees but rather a statement of his own position, designed to encourage progress toward the formulation of long-range plans for comprehensive development and expansion.

Bombs Force Reds to Spread Bases, Arms

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
WASHINGTON (AP) — The almost-daily U.S. bombing of North Vietnam apparently is forcing the enemy to disperse more of its antiaircraft batteries and key supply depots among heavily populated areas, reports Gen. Earle G. Wheeler.

"This is a rough game," the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday night, "particularly if the targets happen to be antiaircraft batteries. If it's only a few barrels of oil, it doesn't make much difference." Wheeler, who returned Friday from a week-long inspection trip to Vietnam, said "there seems to be a growing trend in this direction" and added that the North Vietnamese know "our policy is not to attack populated areas."

The net result, he suggested, is that "in certain instances this makes installations immune to attack."

On the other hand, Wheeler said the enemy's efforts amount to a tribute to the effectiveness of U.S. bombing, which he praised as an "integral and indispensable part of our operations against the North Vietnamese."

"The effectiveness of our air campaign is made increasingly clear by enemy propaganda complaints," the nation's top general said in a speech to a dinner meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society. "And now to escape it, and to seek more propaganda fuel, he appears to be placing his own population into hostage."

Wheeler's remarks apparently were aimed at the controversy that flared over U.S. bombing attacks on the Hanoi area last Dec. 13 and 14. Communist news agencies charged that more than 100 civilians were killed or injured in the raids and U.S. officials later placed two key targets off-limits.

In other related developments:

— President Johnson announced he will ask Congress for a $73 billion defense budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, about $5 billion over the current level. Current spending will be increased by $9.4 billion under a supplemental appropriations request soon going to Capitol Hill, Johnson said.

— Congressional Republicans indicate they will oppose any administration attempts to widen trade with the Soviet Union or other Iron Curtain countries that now are aiding North Vietnam.

— The State Department announced it has revoked the passports of three of four women who visited North Vietnam without the department's approval. One of the women, Patricia Griffith of Ithaca, N. Y., said she would fight the order.

May Rescind Liquor Permit

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Alvin E. Bell, state Alcoholic Beverage Control director, said Thursday that the transfer of a retail liquor license from Hampton to Wilmar is likely to be rescinded.

Bell said the ABC apparently was misinformed on the location of the store at Wilmar.

The ABC board has scheduled a hearing at 10 a.m. Jan. 25.

Scholarships for Music Available

Want a music Scholarship or Award? The National Federation of Music Clubs has perhaps more available for the current season than any other non-profit organization. Some are even to schools nearby.

At the Oklahoma College of Liberal Arts, Chickasha, Okla., one scholarship is available in organ, piano, violin, viola, voice, or music education. The value of the scholarship is $250, prorated at $125 each semester; and it may be renewed for a second year.

Four scholarships, valued at $850 each per year, are offered at Centenary College Shreveport, La., in co-operation with the Shreveport Symphony Orchestra. These are open to players of orchestral string instruments and may be renewed each year until the student earns a Bachelor's degree.

Many other scholarships are available to music students at schools throughout the country. If more information is needed, Mrs. Sam Strong, President of the Friday Music Club, should be contacted.

Civil Defense Conference Scheduled

"Public Officials and citizens of Hempstead County interested in Civil Defense will meet Thursday, January 26, 1966, at 7:00 P.M., at the City Hall Court Room in Hope," City Manager Garland Medders announced today.

The Conference will be conducted by the Arkansas State Teachers College and is sponsored by the Hope Chamber of Commerce, included in the program will be a film entitled: "About Fallout," and a Barrier Shielding Demonstration showing some of the things that can be done in the home in event of radioactive fallout on this country. A number of topics to be discussed will be one asking the question: "Why Civil Defense?"

In urging all citizens to attend this meeting, Mr. Medders said: "Civil Defense is a local problem. Should a tornado, a disastrous fire, or any natural disaster strike one of our communities, the first few hours of rescue and recovery would be the responsibility of the local people. In the event of a nuclear attack on this country, it might be weeks before outside help from the State or Federal government would be available. Hempstead County citizens must be prepared for any eventuality."

Profits From Powell Record to Widow

By JOHN BECKLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-playing record entitled "Keep the Faith, Baby" is going to be one of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell's major weapons in his fight for his House seat.

The record, a collection of statements and observations about his congressional colleagues and sermons by the Harlem politician-preacher, is coming out next week. If it's a hit, Powell hopes he will have solved one of his big problems.

He plans to turn all royalties from sales of the record over to Mrs. Esther James, the Harlem widow who holds a $164,000 slander judgment against him. His failure to pay or to respond to other court orders in connection with the suit has led to his being ordered jailed for contempt of court if he appears in New York.

Powell's chief aide, C. Sumner Stone, said persons who have heard the record describe it in such terms as "fantastic," "unbelievable" and

NEW YORK (AP) — The Harlem widow who won a defamation judgment against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell has already made sure she will get all profits from the congressman's new long-playing record, her attorney said today.

Attorney Raymond Rubin said he served Judge Records, which planned to bring out "Keep the Faith, Baby" next week, with a restraining order preventing the company from turning over any profits to Powell.

Thursday's ruling upheld Pulaski Chancellor Warren Wood who ruled that Campbell and not Robert O. Justice should hold the office.

Justice was appointed county judge by former Gov. Orval Faubus after judge-elect Tom Guiley drowned.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Arizona's Alpha Phi sorority has its own way of relieving exam jitters.

The girls said it takes two weeks to get the sticky cream out of their hair and clothes. During that time, they stick to their dorms and study.

Says China In State of Civil War

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist Chinese Defense Minister Lin Biao, believed to be No. 2 man to party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, was quoted today as saying "the entire country is now in a state of civil war."

The Peking-based correspondent of the Tokyo Yomiuri said Lin's statement appeared without official confirmation in one of the thousands of wall bulletins which have turned the Chinese capital into a paper and ink city.

The defense minister, 59, is in the forefront of the battle to oust President Liu Shao-chi and restore Mao to the position of state power he once held.

Dr. Lin Yutang, noted Chinese author and scholar, predicted in Manila that the current upheaval in Communist China will leave Mao's regime a "wreck." Arriving from Taipei, Formosa, for a goodwill visit, Lin told a news conference: "The worst is yet to come. By the time the purging of Communist leaders is completed, Mao's machinery will be a wreck and shaken to the bottom."

Whether there is civil war in the classic sense or not, there could be no doubt that the vast Chinese mainland and its 720 million people were in the grip of civil confusion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's State of the Union formula for ending the war in Vietnam — slow pressure and patience — left neither doves nor hawks happy today.

His proposals for East-West bridge-building and an agreement to slow the arms race ran into some skepticism and a formidable roadblock — Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen.

Dirksen said he couldn't reconcile support for increased East-West trade and a consular treaty with the Soviet Union with the fact that "we are sending American boys to be killed every day in Vietnam."

Johnson drew strong applause when he pledged in his State of the Union address Tuesday night that the United States would "see Vietnam through to an honorable peace."

But there was less enthusiasm when he said he knew of no better strategy to gain that end than the slow, inexorable accumulation of resources "and patience — and I mean a great deal of patience."

So much turns, he said, on "whether we can continue to act with restraint when the temptation to 'get it over with' is inviting but dangerous."

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, didn't agree with a slow-pressure tactic, saying: "I feel we should increase the pressure tenfold."

"It could be a long procedure if it goes on and on," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But Fulbright promised that the Senate would give careful consideration to the President's proposal for an East-West trade bill and request for approval of the consular treaty with the Soviet Union.

Both proposals were shelved in the last session.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., who has been in the forefront of those opposing escalation of the war, said Johnson's speech "didn't satisfy the anxieties."

He said "the efforts toward peace should be intensified and frankly I think we should de-escalate and stop the bombing of the North immediately."

Taking the other view, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a member of the Armed Services Committee, said it was estimated that 5,000 Americans would be killed in Vietnam this year. He expressed belief more air and seapower "would avoid this by ending the war quickly."

Tech School Offers Businesses Course on Personnel Management

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Getting along with people is an achievement, but working well with others is an art. Recognizing the importance of employer-employee relations to the success of a business, the Red River Vocational Technical School will offer a short course in personnel management for owners and supervisors of business firms in Southwest Arkansas February 7, 9, 14, and 16 from 7 until 9 p.m. at the Commons Assembly Hall of the school, located on Highway 29, South.

Outstanding speakers will explain how better management means bigger profits, a subject of interest to all. On February 7 Brandon Davis, Director of Public Relations in the Union Planters Bank of Memphis, Tenn., will discuss "Principles of Personnel Management," and "Leadership Techniques" will be explained on February 9 by Dan Howard, Manager of the Business and Technical Service Division, U of A Industrial and Research Center in Little Rock.

The third session of the seminar on February 14 will feature Ben F. Finley, Distributive Education Specialist, State Department of Education, Little Rock, who will speak on "Understanding and Motivating Employees," "Recruiting, Selecting, and Placement of Personnel" is to be the subject of the final meeting on February 16 to be presented by Jack Hawkins, Manager of Sears and Company in Little Rock.

This series of four sessions of practical information will be sponsored jointly by the Red River Vocational Technical School, the Hope Trade Development Association, and the Distributive Education Division of the State Department of Education.

The Vocational Technical School serves as a liaison between state and local groups to plan, administer, and inform the public about seminars such as the one to be offered here in February. The Hope Trade Development Association, headed by Bill Morris, president, is a group of Hempstead County businesses joined together through the Chamber of Commerce to promote interests of Hempstead County businesses and their employees.

The State Department of Education acts in a supervisory position gathering information on programs, keeping up-to-date on new ideas, and informing the general public on the over-all objectives of education. Distributive Education is a division of Vocational Education which deals with the distribution and marketing of goods and services. The specialists who are employed in this department organize classes, seminars, and conferences in co-operation with vocational schools, public schools, and colleges. An example of services rendered thusly was the Store Security Class held recently in Hope and attended by 48 persons.

The newest venture of the three groups will be the seminar on Personnel Management which begins February 7. Interested persons may send their $3 enrollment fee to: Red River Vocational Technical School, Box E, Hope. This is according to J. W. Howe, Director of the Red River School.

Baker Says LBJ Was Best Friend

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Baker testified today that around July 1962, he went to see "the best friend I had around the Capitol," the then vice president, about his financial problems.

Baker did not mention the name, but President Lyndon B. Johnson was vice president at the time.

Testifying in his own defense at his trial on income tax evasion and other charges, Baker said also that he had overpaid his 1961 income taxes rather than underpaying them by $1,504 as the government alleges.

"I was in very serious financial difficulty," Baker related concerning the 1962 incident. "I went to the best friend I had around the Capitol. I went to see the then vice president and told him I had a very serious problem."

Baker said he, meaning the vice president, "advised me to go immediately to Gen. Kerr's office, which I did."

Baker said he told Kerr about his financial problems, and Kerr made arrangements for a $250,000 loan from the Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Kerr also said he would make a personal loan to Baker for $50,000, Baker said.

Earlier, Baker's chief lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, had named Kerr as the recipient of $100,000 given by California savings and loan officials to Baker as senatorial campaign contributions. The government has charged that Baker kept about $80,000 of the $100,000.

Williams said he would prove that all of the money, most of it in $100 bills, was turned over to Baker to the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla. A few weeks later, on Jan. 1, 1963, Kerr died of a heart attack.

Today, Williams put Baker on the stand and began questioning him about 1961, the first of two years in which Baker is accused of evading taxes totaling about $22,000.

Baker said he, former Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina and Seby Jones, a Raleigh, N.C., businessman, each had a one-third interest in a Howard Johnson motor lodge and restaurant at Charlotte, N.C.

When Hodges was chosen secretary of commerce in the John F. Kennedy administration in 1961 he decided, according to the testimony, to sell his interest to Baker and Jones for $56,430, the sum to be paid on the installment plan.

Situation at Prison Delays Felony Trials

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — A prosecuting attorney who says he can't ask a jury to send a man to Tucker Prison Farm if conditions are as bad as some reports have indicated has asked for and received postponement of all felony trials in his district.

Lloyd Henry of Searcy said several felony cases were scheduled for trial next week in White County Circuit Court, but he moved in court Wednesday that the felon cases be delayed to the March term. Judge Elmo Taylor of Searcy granted the request.

Henry said his action stemmed from two reports which alleged torture, extortion and drunkenness at Tucker.

Henry said he didn't know what the conditions are at the penitentiary and added: "A jury shouldn't be asked to pass on the guilt or innocence of a defendant when it doesn't know what conditions are at the penitentiary."

Henry is president of the Arkansas Prosecuting Attorneys Association.

Wants Police Board Free of Politics

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Friday he wants the State Police Commission taken out of politics.

The State Police "traditionally has been one of the most political areas you can run into," Rockefeller said.

The governor and commissioners met Friday for about 25 minutes in a closed session. Rockefeller said later in the presence of newsmen that he told the commission he expects professionalism in the department.

He said he expects the commission to be involved in purely policy matters and that the day-to-day operation of the department, including promotions, should be left to the persons hired to run the agency.

This applies to all state boards and commissions, he added.

"And we want Co. (Herman) Lindsey to know that we'll be taking another look at this department in 120 days," Rockefeller said. "If he's not doing the job we want done, we'll hold him responsible."

Rockefeller said it had been traditional for governors to use the State Police for political purposes. "I've seen State Police cars parked in the strangest places," he said.

About whether the State Police had been used in the 1966 general election, Rockefeller said, "Let me repeat, I have seen some State Police cars parked in extraordinary places, and none was parked in front of the Tower Building."

The Tower Building was the Rockefeller campaign headquarters.

He then said he would fire any trooper he catches delivering campaign literature, whether for him or someone else, in 1968.

The governor prefaced his remarks about politics by stating that he felt Arkansas had one of the finest State Police Departments in the country.

Rockefeller said he offered to the commissioners for consideration a proposal for a $5 billion driver's license fee by 50 cents a year.

"This sounds like a tax, but I don't think it is," Rockefeller said. "It's a convenience. Most people are now driving 10 miles a year to get licenses."

Rockefeller said ways to find more money for the State Police were discussed, also. Commissioner Chairman Carl Burger of Springdale estimated that the department needs an additional $1 million annually for an optimum operation.

The executive session, the governor said, was his idea, because he wanted a free discussion with the commissioners.

Ministers Are Under Weather

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's premier and foreign minister were reported under the weather today.
